Innovation in batik designs

batikTEKTURA was founded in 2018 by two Malaysians, Azrina Lasa and Ar. Yezreen Yusof. Their batik motifs bear heavy influence of architectural concepts and elements, thus lending a touch of modernity and minimalism into this traditional craft.

batikTEKTURA began from an idea by Azrina and Yez who wanted simpler designs for their clothing that matches their professional image, while retaining the Malay heritage. The duo developed this idea and eventually, their designs caught the attention of the public and media.

The Company currently works with batik artisans in Kuala Terengganu to produce high quality batik terap ("batik chop" or handblocked batik) fabrics which are subsequently used in the production of clothing and accessories. By making designs that are more contemporary, the skills of these village artisans, which have been passed down from their predecessors for generations, continue to be in demand.

BATIK FABRICS

COLLECTION

MOK, POD AND PULANG (2023)

From SS/2023 collection, available in various colours.

Mok was inspired to reflect the love of a mother (“Mok” in Terengganu dialect) through the Bunga Tanjung flower motif. The Pod motif merges the silhouettes of Pucuk Rebung and a traditional Malay house. Pulang is an abstract of urban settlement patterns of an imaginary Malaysian town.

MATERIAL: COTTON, VISCOSE

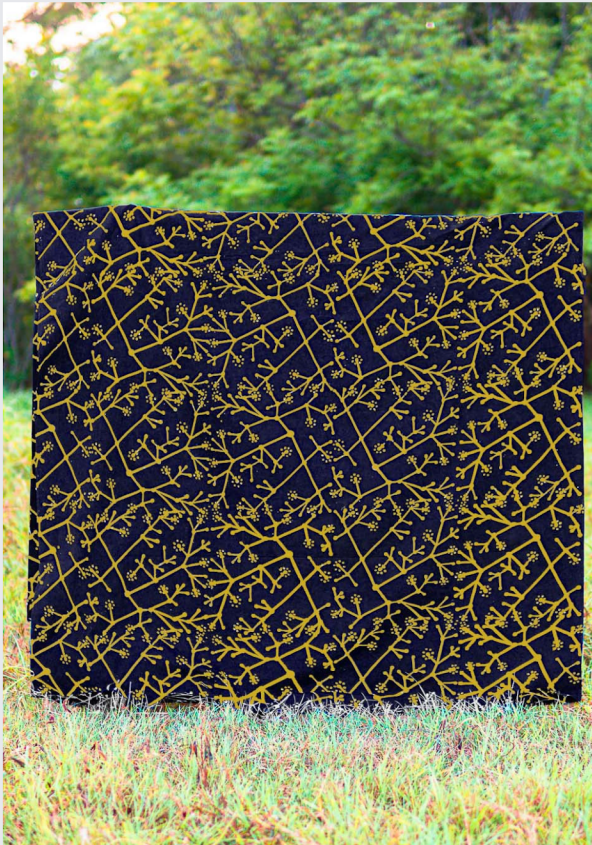

FRAKTAL (2022)

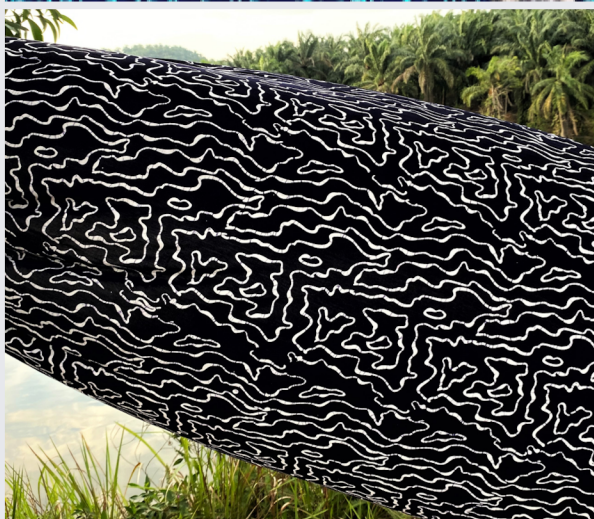

From 2022 collection, available in various colours.

Fraktal is inspired by the fractal geometry in frangipani tree. Architecture does not only exist in man-made structures, but also in countless nature's creations.

MATERIAL: COTTON, VISCOSE

LIKU (2020)

LIKU (2020)

From 2020 collection, available in various colours

Liku is inspired by the topography lines of Bukit Larut, in Taiping, Perak.

MATERIAL: COTTON, VISCOSE

LOREK (2018)

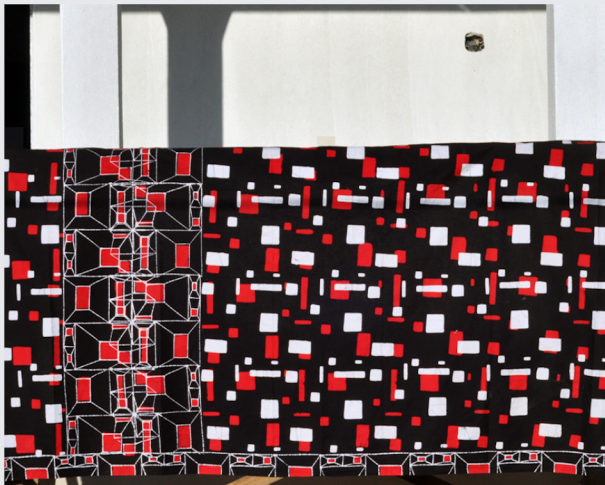

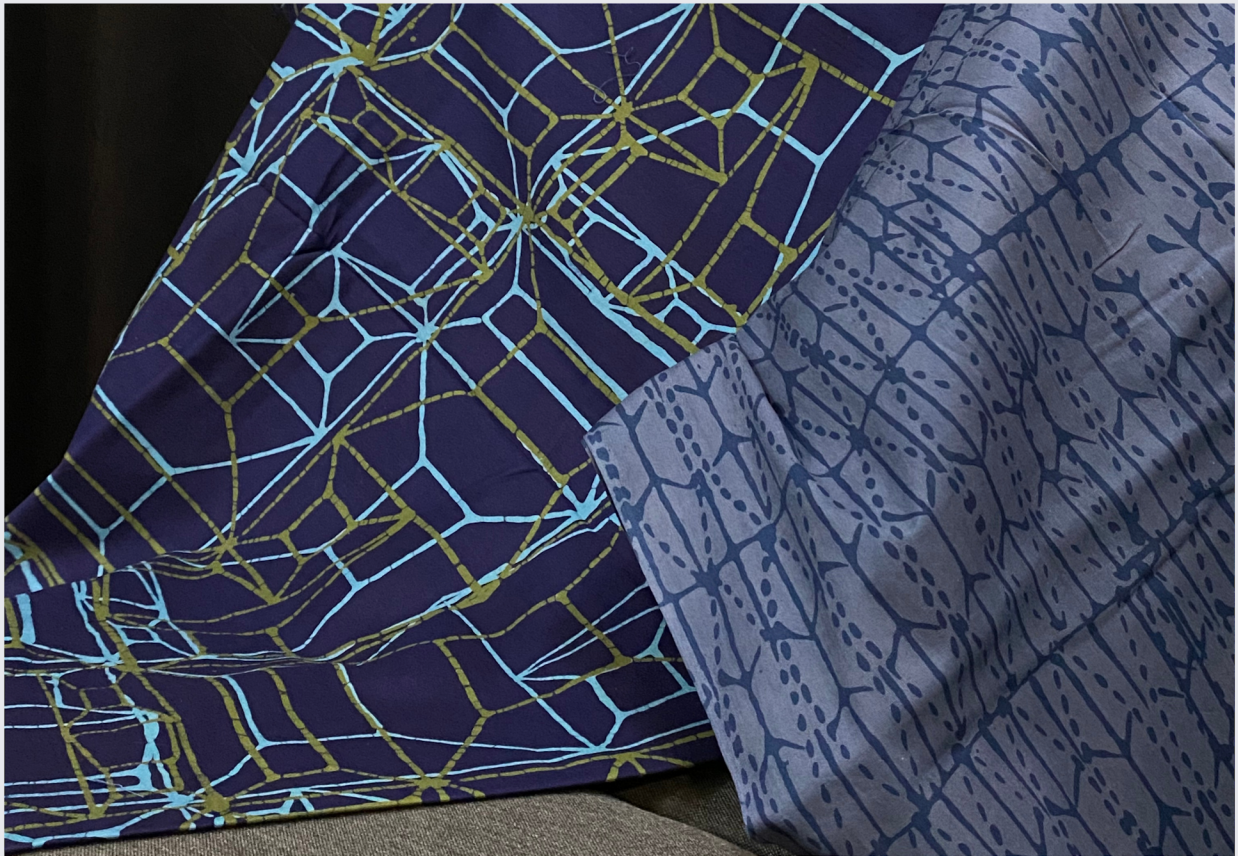

From 2018 collection, available in various colours.

Lorek is an architecture etching by the designer Ar. Yez Yusof.

MATERIAL: COTTON, VISCOSE

BAYANG (2018)

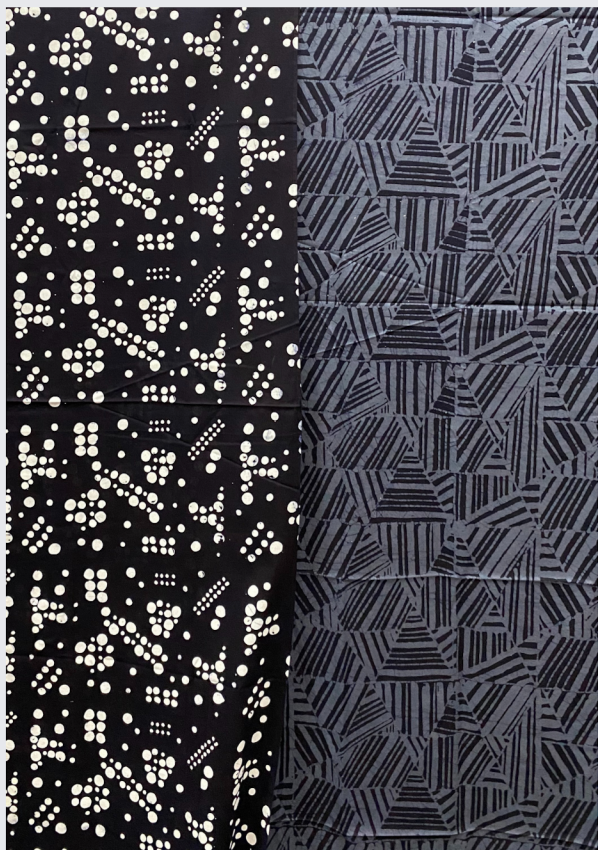

From 2018 collection, available in various colours.

Bayang is inspired by the architectural works of famous Swiss-French architect, Le Corbusier.
